Name: Kevin Aguanno (Keh'-vin Ah-gwan'-no)

Introduction:

Kevin Aguanno is a certified project manager with over seventeen years of experience helping teams of people achieve great things.

Kevin's knowledge and competency as a project manager are certified by the Project Management Institute, and he is also a member of the Association for Project Management in the U.K. Winner of several international awards, he is active in research and writing on the topic of project management and team motivation.

Kevin specializes in turning around troubled software development projects, and is known in the industry for this expertise. Often he finds that the teams he inherits have become demoralized, and he uses several techniques to bring out the best in each team member. Kevin has taken what he has learned on these projects, along with the contributions of over 800 other managers, and written a great book: 101 Ways to Reward Team Members for $20 (or Less!).

The book is very popular and is widely available. Contact Kevin directly for details and a discount.
